

A. M. Todd Botanical Therapeutics Named Winner of the 2007 NBJ Business Achievement Award for Investment in the Future

Logan, UT, January 7, 2007 – A. M. Todd Botanical Therapeutics (AMTBT), a major supplier of botanical extracts and nutritional supplements, was recently named winner of the 2007 NBJ Business Achievement Award for Investment in the Future.

The letter from NBJ (Nutritional Business Journal) announcing the award stated, "This award is bestowed with both admiration and respect for your efforts on behalf of our industry. Your contributions have not only reinforced the success of your company but also the continuing success of the nutrition industry as a whole. We believe we speak on behalf of many in expressing our gratitude and expectation of continued success." The 2007 NBJ awards are published in the December issue of Nutrition Business Journal. Actual presentation of the awards will be at the NBJ Summit in July 2008.

The text announcing the award in the December issue of NBJ is included here: "A. M. Todd Botanical Therapeutics Over the course of 2007, A. M. Todd has transferred production to a carefully selected Chinese manufacturer, decommissioned the Eugene extraction plant, implemented new enterprise management software, launched a market-awareness campaign, secured distribution rights in North America for all of Ningbo Green-Health Pharmaceutical products and for CinSulin, the popular water-extracted cinnamon product patented for blood glucose management. The vision of management, corporate support, and a strong staff have enabled the rapid growth and expansion of A. M. Todd Botanical Therapeutics and set the stage for future success."
